INCHEON NATIONAL UNIVERSITY

April 2023 Vol 2

Prof. Heekwan Lee
Environmental Engineering

Professor Heekwan Lee, pictured left, serves as the Director of the Gangso Research and Development (R&D) Specialized Zone in Seo-gu, Incheon.

In a recent interview, he expressed his belief that companies with global competitiveness in the environmental sector, much like those in the automotive and semiconductor industries, could emerge in the zone.

The Gangso R&D Specialized Zone is an integrated space for research, residential, industrial, and cultural activities. It is designed to be a self-sufficient, high-density R&D zone centered on key technological institutions such as universities, research institutes, and state-owned enterprises.

The Seo-gu district of Incheon launched the Gangso R&D Specialized Zone in 2022, and Professor Lee has played a key role in its establishment.

Message from the new Dean of International Affairs

Prof. Jae Hyun Gwon

Dear esteemed partner universities,

I am delighted to introduce myself as the newly appointed Dean of International Affairs at INU. It is a great honor to take on this role, and I am excited about the opportunity to work with you to strengthen our partnerships and collaborations.

As the new Dean of International Affairs at INU, I will lead our efforts to develop and expand partnerships with universities and institutions around the world.

I strongly believe that international collaboration and exchange are essential for promoting academic excellence, fostering innovation, and enhancing the cultural diversity of our student body. I am committed to working closely with our faculty members and departments to promote joint research, faculty and student exchange programs, and other collaborative initiatives that will benefit all of us.

In addition, I would like to express my eagerness to meet with representatives from our partner universities in person as much as possible. I believe that face-to-face communication is critical to building and maintaining strong relationships, and I look forward to discussing potential areas of collaboration and sharing our respective strengths and resources.

2023 International Summer Program runs from June to August

By Jeehee Sung

INU will be running the 2023 International Summer Programs from June to August. These programs will feature a credit program for international students from 12 countries, as well as a non-credit cultural program for partner universities in Japan.

The credit program is designed to provide international students with an opportunity to gain academic credits while experiencing Korean culture and higher education.

INU will also be offering a non-credit cultural program for partner universities from Japan. This program is designed to promote cultural exchange and provide students with an opportunity to learn about Korean culture through various cultural activities and events.

INU is excited to offer these programs and looks forward to welcoming students from around the world to our beautiful Songdo campus.

Applications for the International Summer Programs will be closing soon, and interested students are encouraged to apply early to secure their spot in the program.

INU hosts Summer Program for delegations from Beijing Institute of Technology, Zhuhai (BITZH), China

By Yerim Heo

Inccheon National University will be hosting a summer program for 38 students from the Beijing Institute of Technology in Zhuhai (BITZH), China. The program is scheduled to take place from July 2 to July 21, and will provide the students with an opportunity to learn and engage with Korean culture and higher education.

INU is excited to welcome the students/faculty and provide them with a valuable academic and cultural experience. The program will include classes in research methods taught in English, as well as field trips for ecological studies. Additionally, the students will have the chance to participate in cultural activities to further immerse themselves in Korean society.

This program is part of INU's ongoing efforts to promote global education and cultural exchange.

INU recognizes the significance of international collaboration and believes that programs like this can offer students a unique and enriching educational experience.

INU is proud to be hosting this summer program and look forward to giving the students a warm welcome and a memorable experience.

Dr. Jong-Tae Park, the president of INU, was awarded the 2023 New York Festival Hall of Fame

By Junghyun Joo

Dr. Jong-Tae Park, the president of Incheon National University, has been awarded the 2023 New York Festival Hall of Fame. He was recognized for his contributions to establishing the university as a regional hub, and for his high evaluation of contributions in discovering and creating "shared social values" by preemptively identifying the development agenda of local communities and the nation.

The Korean National Brand Awards are highly respected and prestigious, and are awarded based on the "National Brand Competitiveness Index (NCI)" model developed by the New York Festival. This year, a total of 748 companies and local governments submitted over 1,850 tangible and intangible brand values to calculate the index. After rigorous evaluation, the most valuable and competitive national brands were selected as national assets, and the New York Festivals Hall of Fame inductee was also selected.
